While COVID continues to exist but not quite to the extent it has over the past two and a half years, we have some updates to share as we look towards the upcoming academic year. Since fall of 2020, Residential Life had a Temporary Health and Safety Procedures document in place that was an addition to the Housing Contract. This document helped us to work with and educate students around expectations for mask wearing, guests and testing requirements. While we do not plan to have this document added to the Housing Contract for fall, we are prepared to make COVID related updates if needed.

As you may already be aware, we continue to have the vaccine and booster requirement for the fall semester. This requirement has greatly reduced the spread of COVID in our campus community.

Student Health and Wellness (SHaW) has developed revised protocols for care for students around COVID. Please continue to monitor and review their website for these protocols and policies so you are informed upon arrival.

Prioritizing Yourself

The life of a college student can be both exciting and stressful. New opportunities and exciting activities as well as increased demands and navigating new relationships and environments accompany it. Student support is at the heart of what we do and we know the need for support varies based on the student and the circumstances. Student Health and Wellness (SHaW) has launched BeWell@UConn, creating an access point for all UConn students regardless of what time of day, what time of year and where the student may be residing to have 24/7/365 access to a mental health practitioner.

Access is made easy through one University-wide number found through the QR code (see below) on the University One Card or the SHaW website. With the 24/7/365 Support Line, students have access to support whenever they need it.
